JURY: Prof.Dr. Neslihan Dostođlu, Assist.Prof.Dr İlke Tekin, Lecturer Dr. Suzan Sanlı Esin, Res. Asst. Şeyda Şen

SUBJECT- AIM- SITE:

During the second half of the 20th century, with the process called the "information revolution", information societies and economies have emerged in some geographies. In this process, where information and service production has become increasingly important, in addition to the high-rise office blocks, "Technoparks" are also located in central areas. Several research activities, innovation studies and new ideas and technologies to be used in production, defense and service sectors are developed in these centers. These centers which are called "Technology and Science Parks", operate like information factories, where flexible production, creativity and entrepreneurship are at the core.

Şişli, which is one of the densest districts of Istanbul in terms of population and construction, has a building stock consisting of residential buildings, shopping malls, cultural and artistic buildings and high-rise business blocks.

In this context, within the scope of the graduation project, it is expected to design a "Technopark" belonging to IKU, which will contribute and provide service to the district, within the boundaries indicated in the map image beside Perpa Trade Center.
